

B-29 BOMBERS RAID JAPAN WITHOUT LOSS

American Troops Threaten Road Junction Near Cherbourg

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THE SIGNIFICANCE of the sensational American bombing of Japan lies not in the mere fact that we've struck a terrifying blow at the Mikado's own domains, for we've done that before, but that at long last we are operating from land bases—not aircraft carriers.

This presumably marks the beginning of regular air assaults on the Japanese homeland, and by bombers so huge and powerful that the biggest machines previously employed (and they are monsters) are relegated to the position of mere "mediums." With the bombs from these Leviathans tearing at the bowels of Gen. Tojo's industries, we shall achieve a great shortening of the war in the Orient.

Our high command is purposely withholding details of this historic raid so as not to give the enemy information. The Japanese have said that we have bombed industrial areas of Moji and Shimono-oki, within 500 miles of Tokyo. Such an admission means that whatever we did, it was plenty.

However, the Nipponese probably weren't really surprised, for they had foreseen this development. That's one of the reasons for their present all-out offensive to capture the Hankow-Canton railway through the heart of China and create a barrier against Allied progress eastward towards the coast. The Japanese have been fearful of the establishment of new American airfields in China. Well, perhaps their fears were justified.

Our daring amphibious invasion of Saipan island in the Marianas after a heavy bombardment is a further shocking blow to Japan. Possession of this strategic point would give us another air base from which we could hammer the motherland. It also helps to nullify the effectiveness of Truk-Japan's most powerful naval and air base in the Central Pacific.

Bombs over Japan and Saipan are a mighty fine go-ahead to the Allied onslaught on Germany. The United Nations are turning loose an avalanche of irresistible power right around the globe.

The Allied flags fly high over Cherbourg peninsula, although the Germans are battling furiously to save their Atlantic wall. The official communiqué today gives us in terse language the news we want to hear.

"All attempts by the enemy to gain the initiative have been frustrated and counter-attacks have been successfully repelled. Our striking power grows steadily."

That's the bright side. There's tragedy among the poppies of Normandy. We must be prepared to learn in due course that the great

Advance To Within Two And One Half Miles of St. Sauveur

By WES GALLAGHER

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 16.—Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's American troops, ramming home another blow to cut off Cherbourg, have advanced to within 2½ miles east of St. Sauveur, a junction controlling two of the three roads leading to the nearly beleaguered port, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Americans marked up a gain of 2½ to three miles west of Carentan after having previously reached Reigneville, three miles to the northeast of St. Sauveur.

Plugging away on a 10-mile front and rapping out repeated gains despite stubborn resistance, the Americans now were within 11 miles of the Cherbourg peninsula's west coast beaches. Their spearhead was some 17 miles below the big port.

While Bradley's Yanks still fought a ding dong battle with Germans in the streets of Montebourg, 14 miles southeast of Cherbourg on the Allied right flank, the British were engaged in stiff tank battles with German troops in force two miles south of Caumont. This is about 20 miles inland, the deepest Allied penetration.

$75,036 MORE IN WAR BONDS

Yesterday's Sales Bring City's Total In Drive to $329,933.70

Salem's Quota $223,900.00
Sales To Date $329,933.70

To Be Sold $1,905,966.30

The air raid siren sounded again last night marking the third $100,000 point reached in the Fifth War Loan drive and Salem's sales were up $75,036 more after a complete tally of the 280 subscriptions made yesterday.

E. M. Stephenson, chairman of the drive, praised bond workers today for their continued efforts and excellent results. He pointed out that the goal would be reached easily by the closing date of the drive if workers continued to show equal results.

Rural community drives in Damascus, Winona and other surrounding sectors are well under way and returns from those places are being included in the Salem territory total each day.

Numerous house-to-house canvassers have reported that reaction to their visits is much more spontaneous and hearty than in previous drives. Workers say Salem has become "invasion minded" and is watching the progress of troops with anxious interest.

Horse Show July 4 Is Expected To Be Largest Ever Held

With plans under way for their Fourth Annual Horse show, Salem Polo club officials said today that the affair, to be held at the Lisbon fairgrounds at 1:30 p. m. July 4, is expected to be the largest ever held in this district.

Because of the increased interest in horses and the probable size of the show, the Polo club has combined with the Pine Hollow Riding academy to stage the exhibition.

Walter Fernengel and E. L. Grate, chairman of the project, reported today that entries are pouring in from four counties. Already horses have been entered from Columbiana, Stark, Trumbull and Mahoning counties. Fernengel said the show will be nearly twice as large as in previous years.

J. B. Votaw is in charge of entries. Application blanks can be secured from any Polo club member and the Riding academy.

Competition is planned for all classes. Horsemanship will be judged in both Western and English groups; jumpers, relay and bending races, three and five-gaited horses, both amateur and professional, and several other classifications will be judged. A group also will be open to the pony class, both boys and girls being eligible as riders.

The Lisbon fairgrounds has been chosen by the club because adequate facilities could not be located in Salem.

CINCINNATI, June 16.—Edwin Underwood, Jr., 11, and Charles Applegate, nine, drowned yesterday while bathing in the Little Miami river.

Tank battles still raged also around Caen and Tilly-sur-Seuilles on the Allied left flank.

Meanwhile headquarters reported the worse weather over the battlefields since D-day with a 30-mile an hour northwest wind blowing onto the beaches—the only place the Allies now hold for the reinforcement and supply of their invasion armies.

Despite the weather, however, the U. S. Battleships Texas and Nevada and Cruiser Augusta were reported arching their shells deep inland to support the troops driving across the peninsula.

A few miles south of the American spearhead pointed at St. Sauveur was another column pushing toward La Haye Du Puits, a road junction controlling all the remaining roads leading into Cherbourg. The Americans last were reported about six miles from this objective.

A late dispatch from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's advanced command post said it was estimated 300,000 German troops had been thrown against the Normandy beachhead.

This dispatch said four German divisions had been badly mauled in battle, including the 709th, 711th and 352nd.

Alive to the vital necessity of holding St. Sauveur and Le Haye Du Puits, the Germans rushed reserves into the battle and vigorous, fluid fighting was in progress.

NAVY TASK FORCE RAIDS BONIN ISLE

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Japanese announced today that an Allied naval task force yesterday afternoon attacked the Bonin island group, between 600 and 700 miles southeast of Japan proper.

An Imperial headquarters communiqué broadcast by Domei said planes from the force struck at two of the islands—Chichi Jima, in the northern section of the group, and Iwo Jima, about 100 miles to the southeast.

Although Allied sources have made no mention of such a raid so close to Japan, the enemy report came while American landing forces were battling the Japanese garrisons after going ashore in the Marianas, another 700 miles or so to the southeast.

The Japanese broadcasts declared damage in the Bonin islands raids was "extremely slight" and claimed 17 of the raiding planes were shot down.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Japanese Domei agency said today in a broadcast reported by Federal Communications commission monitors that several enemy planes had raided Korea (Chosen) Asiatic mainland area immediately opposite Japan.

The broadcast, transmitted to occupied East Asia areas, said the planes hit in southern Korea. It quoted an announcement issued by the Japanese army in Keijo (Seoul) that "we suffered no losses."

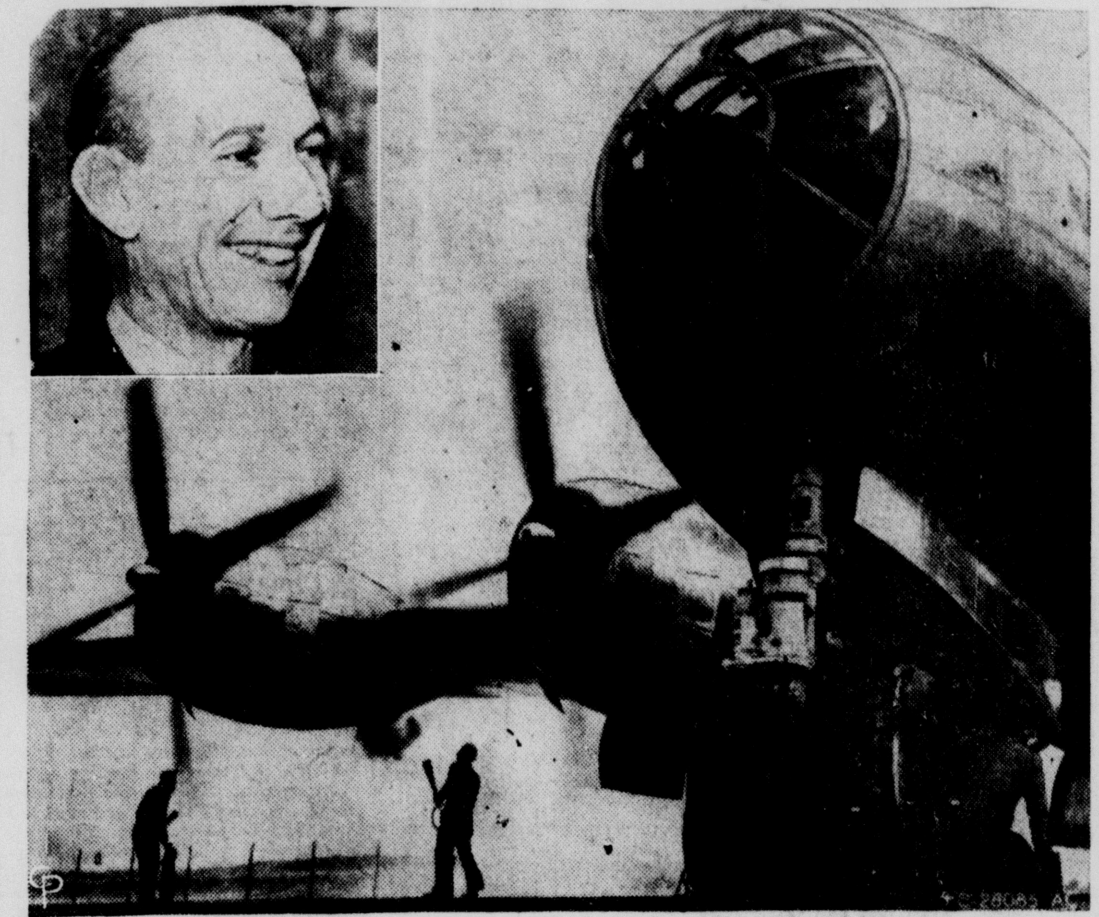

The Japanese report did not identify the nationality of the raiders.

The reported Korea raid came on the heels of an attack on Japan itself by American B-29 Superfortresses.

Warships, Planes Protect Troops Invading Saipan; Win Beachheads

(By Associated Press)

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, June 16.—American troops, landed by the most experienced invasion fleet in the world, advanced against Japanese tanks, artillery and soldiers today 1,500 miles southeast of Tokyo at Saipan in the Marianas—potential base for the B-29s which raided Japan Thursday.

Covered by battleship guns and rocket-firing carrier planes, the Yanks secured beachheads yesterday, moving in from behind Saipan a 72 square mile island 3,800 miles southeast of Pearl Harbor.

They captured Aginan point, a headland on the southwest coast. They battled two miles across canyons to the sugar mill community of Charan-Kanoa. They were placed in reports covering action through Thursday within five miles of Garapan, Saipan's major town of 10,000 population.

Japs Counter-Attack

Supported by shells of offshore warships and bombs of planes from aircraft carriers, they beat off a series of stiff counter-attacks by Japanese tanks.

"In general, fighting is heavy but good progress is being made against well organized defenses," Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced last night in his second communiqué on the operation. The first announced the invasion but supplied no confirmation of a Tokyo radio report that an attempt also had been made to invade nearby Tinian.

Tinian was not mentioned, however, in a Friday morning Imperial headquarters announcement trans-

BANK ROBBER, NOW BLIND, IS PAROLED

CLEVELAND, June 16.—Charles Bird of Baltimore, 33-year-old confessed bank robber once listed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as public enemy No. 2, today was placed on probation for 25 years by Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin.

Judge Wilkin suspended a 25-year prison term because Bird lost the sight of both eyes in an operation. The jurist remarked "nature itself already has provided fitting punishment for this man."

Bird pleaded guilty to an $18,600 bank robbery in suburban Lakewood in 1937. He was arrested shortly after the robbery but fled jail six months later.

Pilotless German Planes Land In England And Then Explode

By LEWIS HAWKINS

LONDON, June 16.—Flame-splitting, pilotless planes drove into southern England today and last night in the Germans' first "secret weapon" reaction to the invasion of France.

These craft, exploding on the ground or close to it, caused deaths and considerable damage at scattered points and sent anti-aircraft guns barking extensively in daylight for the first time since the early blitz days of 1940.

Descriptions of the weapon varied considerably but all agreed these self-destruction aircraft flew at terrific speed in a straight line, were marked by bright lights, and shot flames from their exhausts—suggesting they might be jet or rocket-propelled.

The lights presumably were to aid in radio control, probably from piloted planes at a great distance.

The German communiqué said only that southern England and the greater London area were attacked with novel weapons and "super heavy" explosives were dropped.

A special note broadcast after the communiqué of the high command said "there is hardly one German who will not receive this news with greatest satisfaction."

The feelings of hatred and a burning wish for retaliation which dominate the German people have been kindled by our enemies in their terror crimes."

Explode After Landing

The British Ministry of Home Security ordered civilians to stay away from the pilotless aircraft, which explode five to 15 seconds after landing.

One correspondent telephoned this word picture of the pilotless craft: "The planes have a distinctive, rhythmic note, giving the effect of a pulsating, low throbb. They are much smaller than a Spitfire but their appearance is much the same."

Yawata, Steel Center, Target Of Big Planes

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—America's first task force of the mighty B-29 Superfortresses of the air lost no planes to enemy action in yesterday's raid that hit industrial targets at Yawata, Japan.

Two planes, however, were lost through accidents, the War department said in the second communiqué of yesterday's historic aerial strike against the Japanese mainland—made from Chinese bases.

The crew of one plane lost is known to be safe, the department said. It added that fliers who participated in the mission said the bombing was accurate and that large fires and explosions were observed.

A communiqué issued by headquarters of the new 20th Air Force, controlling the operations of the Super-Fortresses around the world, was based on preliminary and incomplete reports from the combat zone.

The formation was described as "a sizeable task force," operating from recently-completed bases in China.

The text of the 20th Air Force communiqué:

"A sizeable task force of B-29s from the 20th Bomber command bombed industrial targets at Yawata on the Kyushu island in the Japanese homeland on Thursday, June 15.

"Preliminary reports reveal that although enemy aircraft were encountered and anti-aircraft was moderate to intense, none of the planes was lost as a result of enemy action.

"Fliers who participated in the mission report the bombing was accurate and that large fires and explosions were observed.

"The planes operated from bases in China which were completed recently. Two B-29s were lost as the result of accidents, one crew of which is safe. This communiqué is based on the preliminary incomplete reports from the combat zone."

Burning Wreckage Seen The raid, leaving behind "glowing masses of wreckage," gave the Nipponese empire, in the words of an eyewitness, "her answer to Dec. 7, 1941—Pearl Harbor."

Radio Correspondent Roy Porter, first to report of 11 newsmen who accompanied the aerial dreadnaughts on their historic mission, said in a broadcast over the combined American networks from the far east that "tons upon tons of bombs were dropped" on coke ovens and open hearth furnaces of Japanese steel mills.

Yesterday's mission was a combined psychological and strategic blow by B-29s.

Describes Super Fortresses' Attack On Jap Steel Mills

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 16.—America's Superfortresses left glowing masses of wreckage in the coke ovens and open hearth furnaces of the great Yawata steel mills in the "curtain raiser" attack of these B-29s on Japan yesterday, Radio Correspondent Roy Porter reported today in a broadcast from China.

The super-bombers, flying from bases in western China, ran into heavy anti-aircraft fire and encountered Japanese night fighters, but "nearly all the ships came back," said Porter, one of 11 war correspondents who witnessed the attack. Porter, a former Associated Press correspondent, represented the combined American radio networks on the raid.

The target at Yawata was the Imperial steel and iron works at the northern tip of Kyushu, Japan's southernmost home island, Porter disclosed. The mill is a mainstay in Japan's war industry.

The attack "was carried out with almost complete amazement to the Japs," Porter broadcast.

Porter's text, as transcribed by CBS: "The attacks were swift and surprising. They came with almost complete amazement to the Japs. We'd run into rigorous action with that mysterious weapon of America."

40,000,000 FRENCHMEN

There are approximately 40,000,000 Frenchmen. A few thousands of these are in the Normandy invasion area. Less than a million, including Gen. Charles De Gaulle and his associates, have been living outside France during Germany's occupation of the country.

There is no basis available to any government or any commentator for broad conclusions about France, and any broad conclusions reached on narrow evidence may do serious disservice to both the winning of the war and the peace. No one can assume to speak at this juncture for 40,000,000 Frenchmen.

More than that, no one may speak about them with propriety, unless it is to call attention to their present condition for the purpose of averting hasty and half-baked conclusions. When France has been released from German occupation and again has a voice of its own, that will be time enough to jump at conclusions about it and its people.

There is danger that Americans, ever eager to jump from the dizzy heights of their naive into the chasm of their disillusionment, may conclude they have wasted their sympathy on France because Gen. de Gaulle or some other isolated representative of the French people does not measure up to their behavior standards. There is danger that some Americans may lose sight of their objective in the war because they are preoccupied with the thought that Frenchmen are not properly grateful to them. The disillusionment that depressed them about Italy will be compounded in France as their commitments on French soil are increased. It is a mark of our juvenile in international relations that we are never prepared to face the fact that other nationalities are a mixture of good, bad and indifferent, like ourselves.

If there is any comfort to be derived from cynicism—and perhaps there is—it should be taken from the thought that the United States is not in World War II to win the unmitigated gratitude of the French, Italians, the natives of the South Sea islands, the British, the Russians or anyone else. We are fighting for the security of the United States and its principles; whatever unmitigated gratitude that accrues in the process is a bonus which can be credited to international goodwill.

United States forces are fighting in Europe to defeat Germany. They are fighting in Asia and the Pacific to defeat Japan. If these facts were as clearly recognized and as fully accepted by civilians as they seem to be by our fighting men, the time wasted on misgivings about the attitudes and conditions of the peoples affected in the battle areas could be saved for the more important work of winning the war.

AIR POWER'S OBJECTIVES

In view of the ups and downs they have had, exponents of air power cannot be blamed for their present silence on what they think has happened to Germany's once dreaded luftwaffe.

But if they were to think what circumstances now seem to justify, they must have concluded that Allied air power's objectives in the war have been attained. Those objectives were stated by Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the army air force, in his report to the secretary of war last January.

"It is difficult to appraise the present struggle for air supremacy as representing anything short of a major turning point in the war," he said. "What American and Royal Air Force bombers can do to the whole German war machine, once the German fighter force is rendered impotent, needs no comment. The issue hangs now on which side first falters, weakens, and loses its punishing 'power.' Our primary concern is to make the coming invasion as economical as possible."

That was last January. The luftwaffe still was formidable. No one dreamed then that an invasion across the English Channel could be staged with almost no opposition from the air. "Air power" properly deployed and employed can stop a sea-borne force," Gen. Arnold declared in his report. In June, the greatest invasion in history has been staged without important air opposition. At every point where German air power is needed, it is either absent, or insufficiently strong to be a major factor.

Allied power has performed its job of softening Germany for invasion and now is starting on the new problem of clearing the way for the knockout.

GERMANY'S SUPREME COMMANDER

Rumors of Marshal Rommel's fall from Hitlerian grace, insofar as they may be given serious consideration, must be reconciled with the fact that Adolf Hitler is supreme commander of Germany's military forces, in addition to being fuhrer and chancellor. A decision to throw out Rommel would have to come from Hitler, himself.

Hitler's military genius engineered the disaster at Stalingrad and shortly thereafter was reported in retirement while the supreme commander's generals handled the consequences. The Italian campaign apparently has been handled without the benefit of Hitler's master-minding, as was the African campaign which preceded it.

If the supreme commander were to be taking charge of things in France, the likeliest conclusion to be drawn from the Rommel rumor, it would be the best news since the weather cleared. It sounds too good to be true—a ruse to create over-confidence among the Allies.

A DAY FOR FATHERS

Father's day finally has grown to be a national occasion, thanks to the sly encouragement given to it by its beneficiaries. They lent themselves to it for a curious reason; namely, to give their well wishers a chance to blow off emotional steam.

They recognized, to put it another way, that if the fuss over fatherhood could be channeled into one special occasion, the whole thing would be easier to keep track of. There would be a little peace and quiet the rest of the year.

As one thinks of the American father on his day being waited on hand and foot by his solicitous family, not being nagged to do or not to do anything, but just living the life of a carefree male for one delicious day, it makes a tender picture. The old boy is toggled out in all the stuff that has been showered on him by his loved ones. Or, if he is away at the war, which is the plight of many fathers this year, he is comforted by the thought they are waiting for him to come home to trim the shrubbery, help with the dishes, discipline the children, meet the bills and behave in a manner that will not make his admiring brood ashamed of him. He knows he means more to them than ever before.

Father's day this year is properly putting the emphasis on fathers who are away, and the reason for the emphasis is plain. Until fathers go away, practically no one ever realizes how indispensable fathers are.

For Saturday, June 17

CONFLICTING indications are to be read from this day's astral aspects, with some of progress and several setbacks or sudden upheavals of deep rooted significance. There may be danger of extravagance, excesses, impulses and temperamental indulgences, which may be likely to place in jeopardy certain openings for worthwhile progress. New and clever propositions having merit are well aspected, and ingenuity and novelty may carry over threatening situations. Good nature and restraint may obviate difficulties. The social and romantic elements, with celebrations, are propitiously indicated. Good fortune and happiness await personal prudence and discretion.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of progress and opportunity for success and individual happiness, if they will decide to refrain from predispositions to extravagance, or impetuous and erratic indulgences. With emotions and temper under curb and with much discretion and sagacity there should be indications of good fortune and some surprising success. Be prudent with change.

A child born on this day may be impulsive and perhaps erratic, but should be talented and on the whole sociable, artistic and successful.

Gallbladder Upsets Helped By Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "Would you please send me a list of things I might eat as a diet for an upset of the gallbladder. I have a list of what not to eat and it seems to include everything. As far as I can see this list contains everything anyone should eat in order to be at all healthy."

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

healthy and gain resistance to fight other diseases or colds. It must be that there is a regular gallbladder diet list by some doctor though I have been unable to obtain any support to that effect.

The diet planned by Dr. Albert P. R. Anderson is well suited to gallbladder dyspepsia and periodic upsets due to mild gallbladder stasis in which the condition is not severe enough or for some other reason surgical intervention is not justified.

It is based on a diet high in fat and on frequent small meals, six a day, rather than three large meals.

Six Small Meals

The principles on which this diet is based are that the dyspeptic troubles due to gallbladder depend on stasis of the bile in the gallbladder and infection. In both drainage is indicated and this is obtained by frequent feedings high in fat. Adequate drainage sufficient to overcome gallbladder stasis is accomplished by the presence in an emulsified state of fat in the upper part of the small intestine. Large meals cause pressure and back-damping in the gallbladder while small frequent meals give an effect of continuous drainage and also supply sufficient nourishment.

Dr. Anderson's sample diet is as follows for one day:

Breakfast—Milk: One glass. Cereal, with cream and sugar. Egg, soft boiled or poached. Bread and butter. Fruit, raw, of any kind.

Mid-morning—Milk and crackers; bread and butter, or cake.

Luncheon—Milk, one glass. Egg, soft boiled or poached, or cream cheese. Potatoes, baked or mashed.

Vegetables, well cooked, any kind. Salad. Bread and butter. Pudding, ice cream, jello or fruit (raw or cooked).

Mid-afternoon—Milk and crackers; bread and butter; or cake.

Supper—Same as luncheon.

Bedtime (and in night if awake)—Milk and crackers; bread and butter; or cake.

Olive Oil—One-half ounce, or cream, one ounce, three times daily with meals.

Water—At least 4 or 5 glasses a day.

Alleviates Symptoms

Patients should be warned that the diet may aggravate the condition for a short time, but that by adherence to the regimen all symptoms will eventually be alleviated. The diet should not be prescribed when evidence such as slight jaundice indicates blockage of the common duct. If, after reasonable trial, symptoms persist complications which demand surgical intervention may be assumed.

Bile salts by mouth will also help by draining the contents of the gallbladder into the intestines and are sometimes used along with the diet. But the diet alone, if used faithfully, will cause the contents of the gallbladder to drain into the intestines and thus tend to prevent complications.

The above one day's diet is only a sample. It does not take much ingenuity to plan varied diets for other days if you keep to the general principles of small, frequent meals containing staple articles: high in fats—such as butter, cream, eggs, cheese, salad dressings.

Hospitals of Salem Receive $1800 From Nearby Communities

War Chests in communities served by the two Salem hospitals raised $1,800 for the hospitals as part of their 1943 campaigns, according to Ralph Atkinson, chairman of the Community War Chest of Northern Columbiana county.

Payment in full was made to the hospitals yesterday, $1,200 being distributed to Salem City hospital and $600 to the Central Clinic. This is in accordance with an agreement made between the two hospitals prior to the campaign last fall.

The campaign was conducted by the hospitals as heretofore. This was necessary because the chest drives in the various communities were scheduled for the same time as the campaign for the hospitals.

Community Contributions

The participating communities, their chairmen and the amounts raised follow:

Columbiana, William B. Miller, chairman, $50; Lisbon, Mayor Cecil Rauch, chairman, $500; Hanover, and Hanover township, J. Howard Sinclair, chairman, $200; Lee, Edward C. Greenmeyer and Ralph Kennedy co-chairmen, $200; Center township, Galen H. Bowman, chairman, $147.44; Fairfield township, Mrs. Harry Miller, chairman, $112.92; Salem township, S. D. Bailey, chairman, $69.64.

Damascus, Winona and Washingtonville, and Perry and Butler townships conducted campaigns as part of the Salem Community War Chest, hence did not have separate hospital campaigns.

Ever since Salem City hospital was built more than 30 years ago, these communities have contributed to a fund for equipment and improvement of the institution, and of late years this financial help has gone to a joint fund for the benefit of both hospitals.

Funds derived from these campaigns, together with funds raised through the Salem Community chest, have enabled the Salem hospitals to keep their technical equipment up to a standard normally maintained only in metropolitan cities.

Discharge Industry From Restrictions, Girdler Plea

CLEVELAND, June 16—Calling for the "honorable discharge of industry from wartime regulations as soon as possible," T. M. Girdler, chairman of the Republic Steel Corp., today asserted "there are some who would like to see business continue doing 'squad right' and 'squad left' for a long time to come."

In an address prepared for the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, the head of the nation's No. 3 steel producer declared:

"I am convinced that if these wartime restrictions on industry are held over to meet the conversion crisis, there is real danger they will be required later to meet other crisis, and still others, on and on into perpetuity."

The industrialist, who also is chairman of the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp., criticized "the strange spectacle of Uncle Sam turned union organizer and dues collector."

"Out of that has come the up-bulldozing of great labor unions with large financial resources and tremendous economic and political power."

Commenting on some of the "disturbing factors" in the postwar outlook for labor relations, Girdler said "the growth of labor organizations in itself is not disturbing. Collective bargaining is necessary in modern industry. . . . but collective bargaining by government edict at the point of a bayonet ceases to be collective bargaining. It ceases to be democracy."

Girdler disclosed his intention of retiring from the aviation industry at the close of the war, "to devote my time entirely to steel."

ADVANCE

The German communists said the Nazis drove the Allies back southeast and southwest of Carantan, but admitted Allied gains west and north of Ste. Mere Eglise. It claimed, also, that a wedge had been driven into the Allied bridgehead east of the Orne river.

West of newly captured Quineville, on the extreme right wing of the 100-mile beachhead front, American forces advanced a mile or more to reach the Senne river.

Armored Forces Clash

These were the only advances registered along the front, Communiqué No. 21 said there were no major changes.

Furious armored fighting raged in the Tilly Sur Seules sector while further east the battle of Cam settled into trench warfare with the British and Canadians holding on tenaciously. The nearest approach to a "line" was held around Troarn, at the extreme left flank of the bridgehead.

Fighting abated somewhat in the Caumont sector where Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery had made his deepest penetration inland in the forefront of the week. The Germans appeared to be gathering strength for a new counter-attack in this area.

For the first time since the battle of the beachhead started, conservative German reports from the sectors where fighting was taking place agreed generally with announcements of the Allied supreme command.

Field dispatches said noble fighting in the spearheads of the American sector found generals in the front line with their troops, tossing hand grenades and firing rifles by the score with privates.

American columns pushing forward sometimes were cut off and had to fight their way back into contact with the main forces.

American tactical air forces flew 3,000 sorties in 200 missions yesterday in support of the ground forces in Normandy. American and British heavy bombers brought their 24-hour total to more than 4,000 sorties.

Weather hampered air operations somewhat, but unloading of troops and supplies on the beachhead continued at full blast, and Supreme headquarters declared Montgomery's striking power "is growing daily."

1,200 Acre Crile Estate Purchase Is Approved

COLUMBUS, June 16.—Purchase of the 1,200-acre Crile estate in Lake county as a forestry project was approved today by the State Emergency board.

By a vote of four to one, it granted the forestry division $70,000 to supplement $15,000 the division already had for purchase of land. The estate was estimated to cost about $85,000. The project will be under the supervision of the Agricultural Experiment station at Wooster.

Held To Grand Jury

LISBON, June 16.—Joseph R. Hedden, 37, of East Liverpool, is being held in county jail after he was bound over to the grand jury last night on $1000 bail on a charge of incest, involving his 10-year-old daughter.

Compulsory negotiation of labor disputes is one of the main points in Canada's new labor code.

Porter's only reference to a specific target was to name Yawata, but the Tokyo radio said Moji and Kokura also were hit. All three are in northern Kyushu, southernmost portion of the Japanese mainland.

An earlier enemy broadcast had acknowledged that the Yawata plant of the Japan Iron Manufacturing Co. had been hit with "a few bomb fragments" but asserted there was "no damage whatever to plant facilities."

Bonin Island Raided

As the fury of the Pacific offensive mounted hour by hour—first with disclosure of the B-29 raid and later the announcement of Angkor—Japan's main island in the Marianas—the Japanese reported an attack by an Allied naval task force on the Bonin island group, less than 700 miles southeast of Japan proper.

The Imperial headquarters communicate broadcast by Domei said plans from the task force hit Chichijima, an island in the northern section of the Bonin group, and Iwo Jima, about 100 miles to the southeast. There was no Allied confirmation of the Bonin reports.

The Tokyo radio, after a long silence following the War department announcement yesterday, finally said industrial areas of Moji and Shimonoseki were hit. Early today it belittled the assault. It did how- ever, in a broadcast of reports un- confirmed and wholly suspect, place the scenes of admitted damage within 500 airline miles of Tokyo.

The German radio, quoting a Tokyo imperial headquarters broadcast, said it was reported that "no enemy aircraft were over Tokyo."

Actual production of war materials, apart from construction of plants and equipment, is proceeding at the rate of $55,000,000 a week, according to J. F. Pringle, vice president of the Canadian National Railways. He revealed that the Canadian mining industry output has expanded threefold and that at the present time Canada is the greatest base metal exporting country in the world.

Y BARES DETAILS OF SPECTACULAR PER-FORTRESS WHICH BOMBED JAPAN

By JAMES J. STREIBIG
Staffed Press Aviation Editor
WASHINGTON, June 16 — The after tersely announcing its moth B-29 Superfortresses had bombed Japan yesterday uncovered details of the world's most about airplane.

At the same time, the war department disclosed an equally spectacular military organization hitherto unmentioned — the 20th Air Force, a roving, earth circling bomber command headed by Gen. H. H. Arnold.

The Boeing B-29 and the 20th Air Force were made for each other, one a weapon designed to slug the enemy with unparalleled reach and power, the other a military authority to use such a weapon anywhere in the world independent of theater commanders.

Unlike any other air force, the 20th is responsible only to the joint chiefs of staff. Gen. Arnold heads it as a separate assignment rather than as part of his job as commanding general of the Army Air Forces. He will use it as a strategic air force directed from Washington. The chief of staff of the 20th Air Force is Brig. Gen. H. S. Hansell, Deputy Chief of staff of the Army Air Forces.

Vast Production Program
The plane and its employment are complemented by the most gigantic production program ever conceived for any weapon of war. Virtually every industrial center in America is contributing directly to the output of the huge bomber, which already is rolling down multiple assembly lines in five of the nation's greatest airplane factories.

In addition, one sub-assembly plant is so large it has the status of a prime contractor. The program is counted in billions of dollars.

The War department and the Boeing Airplane company showed the B-29 and its supporting program to the some 60 newspaper, magazine and radio writers at Wichita, Kas., heart of the production scheme, early in May. The information was held in confidence until today's disclosure that it had bombed Japan. The writers were flown in the plane and permitted to inspect it thoroughly, aloft and aground.

Long familiar in only the most general terms, these details of the superfortress now may be published: Its wing span is 141.2 feet, its length 98 feet, its height 27 feet.

Much Protective Armor
It has a cylindrical fuselage, a midwing, a high dorsal fin, tricycle landing gear and is all metal.

Armament includes 50 calibre machine guns in power turrets and a 20 mm cannon. There is much protective armor.

The power consists of four 18-cylinder, radial Wright cyclone engines rated at 2,200 horsepower for takeoff. Each engine is served by two turbo-superchargers to provide the high altitude operation desired.

Each engine drives a 16½-foot four-bladed Hamilton-Standard propeller, largest ever installed on an airplane. The propellers are connected by reduction gears so that they turn slower (one-third as fast as the engines) than any other aircraft propellers.

Crew comforts surpass anything in any previous warplane. The cabin has been soundproofed, seats are of the latest design, four cots and many minor conveniences are available. The purpose is increased crew efficiency in combat despite the long time spent in the air.

Except for a hydraulic booster on the brakes, the B-29 is entirely electric. It has 150 electric motors of 49 types using power supplied by auxiliary engines.

So complex is the plane's operation that a flight engineer controls most of the power plant, the pilot using only the throttle and his usual flight instruments. The rudder and ailerons are so balanced that despite their size they are operated without the aid of boosters, thus giving the pilot the "feel" experienced in smaller aircraft.

Faster, Farther, Higher
Performance data must remain on the restricted list, but Boeing officials were permitted to say that it "carries the greatest load factor, farther and higher than any other airplane in existence," and its speed "compares favorably with the latest and fastest of the world's pursuit and fighter planes."

Takeoff and landing speeds of the B-29 approximate that of its baby brother, the Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress which weighs only half as much but is two-thirds as large. This is due to an entirely new wing, the Boeing 11 airfoil, which Boeing officials assert is the "most efficient wing ever devised." It carries a greater load per square foot than any other.

In connection with it are used flaps amounting to one-fifth the total wing area. These are lowered to 25 degrees for takeoff and 45 degrees for landing. The wing has an aspect ratio (length divided by chord or average width) of 11.5, a high figure indicating a very slender wing.

The double wheels on the main landing gear at 4½ feet in diameter, these on the nose wheel (the only double nose wheel in use) are three feet. The air pressure in the tires is less than in a bicycle tire, indicating the plane can land on relatively light runways.

Most Tested Plane in World
The big plane is easily the most streamlined heavy bomber in the world. Its contour exceeding in smoothness that of most commercial planes. It is so aerodynamically "clean" that the "drag" or wind resistance, is doubled when the landing gear is lowered.

In appearance, the B-29 has the round-nose features of the Boeing Stratoliner and the swept back wing, slender body and high tail of the Flying Fortress.

The Superfortress is described as the "most tested airplane in the world," with 8,600 hours of wind tunnel work. It was conceived in March, 1940, in the Boeing plant at Seattle and made its first flight there Sept. 21, 1942.

House Republicans Plan Public Hearings On Tax

WASHINGTON, June 16—Chairman Reed (R-NY) of the house Republican postwar tax study committee announced today his group would open public hearings soon after the summer congressional recess on a proposed postwar tax program designed to cut present levies by one-half.

Leaders of business, agriculture, labor and other groups will be invited to testify, he said.

"We are unanimously agreed that no time should be lost in formulating a postwar tax program," Reed asserted in a prepared statement. "Apparently the treasury has no postwar tax plan or suggestions. The administration apparently either is unwilling to face the problem or is putting it off to some last-minute date. The time to develop such a plan is now."

The planned hearings would open here, with follow-up sessions at other cities later.

The Reed group is composed of 25 Republican representatives, 10 of them members of the tax-writing ways and means committee.

When the GOP committee announced its goal of a 50 per cent cut in postwar taxes recently, Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the ways and means committee termed the move "purely politics."

WASHINGTON, June 16 — The house was asked today to provide a suit of underwear for a Wisconsin man six feet six inches tall and weighing 260 pounds.

"This constituent of mine really faces a crisis," Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.) told the members. "Due to mistakes in OPA handling of allocation and production he can't find a pair of underwear big enough to fit him anywhere in this nation. Can any man in this house?"

and Title "Joker" Has Cost Purchasers $75,000 In 60 Years

(By United Press)
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — When F. Menage, a fabulous character in the early growing days of Minneapolis, was carrying on grand real estate promotion, he thoughtfully inserted a clause in his deeds which still is bringing steady income to an heir.

The land involved in the development embraced, roughly, 12 square miles in the southwest section of the city, and into thousands of deeds went the provision that the property should revert to Menage, his heirs or assigns for storage, sale or manufacture of vinous, malt or brewed liquors.

When the great majority of the original and subsequent purchasers had no mind to enter the liquor business, they found the innocent appearing paragraph now known as the "Menage clause," clouded their eyes.

The owners began to beat a path to the door of Menage seeking to claim deeds, upon which he had set the modest price of $5. As demand increased, so did Menage's fee—to $25.

Such deeds once became unobtainable at any price. Menage, however, by the construction of a Guaranty Life building here, the world's tallest skyscraper at the time, twice was indicted for conspiracy in 1893. One of the indictments involved $723,289.70; the other, $270,289.79.

Menage reportedly spent some time in South America at that time, actually returning to Minneapolis where the court charges against him were dismissed in 1901. He lived his few remaining years in New York, kept in life's necessities with those $25 fees.

The quit claim right then passed to his wife, Amanda; then to her daughter, Bessie, who died in 1938, bequeathing it to a friend, Sarah Koehler, who still collects $250 to $600 yearly.

Officials here estimate that 3,000 deeds have been cleared in this manner over a period of 60 to 70 years, at a total cost of approximately $75,000.

Yankee Sense Of Humor Will Win War, According To Nurse

(By International News Service)
PITTSBURGH — Army Nurse Lieut. Virginia LaBelle Watts learned on the Anzio beachhead that Yankee sense of humor makes American victory inevitable.

In a letter to her father, Fred A. LaBelle, Lieut. Watts wrote: "Some happy tomorrow, if anyone at a Parent-Teacher meeting asks me why we won the war, I can easily say that it was the indestructible Yankee sense of humor that bounced us to Berlin."

Not Much To Giggle Over
"In the worst situations, someone always murmurs some wonderful, wacky thing which melts all tension to marshmallows and everyone goes on, quite calm and a little giggly."

But there was not much to giggle at on the beachhead.

"Africa, Sicily and landing at Salerno all seemed like basic training compared to our experiences at Anzio," her letter continued. "We never worked harder or longer or loved our work more."

"It's funny how the dive bombers seem so definitely aimed at exactly one's own insignificant spot on earth—and that awful wait before the earth rocks from the explosion. The scarlet ack ack trooping across the sky, the area bright from the pink and amber light of flares, the bonfire glow of effective hits, are a colorful and awful sight."

Longs For Peace
"Every morning, out of the heap of cotton and roses in the wakening east, rear scores of our fighter planes to begin patrols or meet proud formations of bomber squadrons as an escort."

"No football game ever evoked more cheering than we give these lads and if a plane is hit, our hearts open with every 'chute and prayers drift gently down along the dog fights are exhausting to watch, cuz' we all fight so hard just standing still."

"None of us would exchange combat life in spite of all our day dreaming of wearing a white uniform in a quiet sane place somewhere because, since we are so close to the front, we feel that much closer to our kingdom of tomorrow, the tomorrow all full of soft lights and music, blue polka dot dresses, crisp celery, hotel dining rooms, Sunday drives—and oh, just the whole vibrant loveliness of America to fill our pockets with for a rich and peaceful always."

Takes Scout Position

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., June 16.—D. D. Montoya will come here July 1 from the Mahoning Valley council to serve as Boy Scout executive, succeeding R. D. Dalrymple, who resigned to accept a similar post at Hamilton, O. Montoya's council will include Athens, Meigs, Monroe and Washington counties in Ohio and eight counties in West Virginia.

Household Hints

A carefully mended rug is almost invisible in rayon hosiery if you will use thread drawn from a discarded silk stocking.

The new colorful nets for the hair can be used in duo. Try using a lavender one over your chignon and a grey one to veil your forehead.

Why not can oven baked beans, so they will always be on hand when you get a longing for them? Get together with a neighbor for a baked bean canning day.

Lingerie can be laundered by gently squeezing out of warm, sudsy water. The shoulder straps will usually need a little extra rubbing with a soft brush.

Put two or three tablespoons of kerosene in a boilerful of white clothes to help lighten them. Be sure to rinse thoroughly to remove any odor.

WBP says the world normally consumes six times more cotton than wool or rayon, 25 times more cotton than silk.

Saipan is relatively flat, adaptable to the Superfortresses which loosed their destruction Thursday on Japan's industrial areas. But the same flatness prompted the invasion commander, Vice Adm. He warned that lightning victories in the Marshalls may not be duplicated at Saipan.
William L. Worden, Associated Press war correspondent who accompanied the expeditionary force, said Adm. Turner described the large force of men and ships "as the most experienced amphibious war fleet in the world."

ARMY BARES DETAILS OF SPECTACULAR SUPER-FORTRESS WHICH BOMBED JAPAN

By JAMES J. STREIB
Associated Press Aviation Editor
WASHINGTON, June 16 — The Army, after tersely announcing it had bombed Japan yesterday, uncovered many details of the world's most talked about airplane.

At the same time, the war department disclosed an equally spectacular military organization hitherto unmentioned — the 20th Air Force, a roving, earth circling bomber command headed by Gen. H. H. Arnold.

The Boeing B-29 and the 20th Air Force were made for each other, one a weapon designed to slug the enemy with unparalleled reach and power, the other a military authority to use such a weapon anywhere in the world independent of theater commanders.

Unlike any other air force, the 20th is responsible only to the joint chiefs of staff. Gen. Arnold heads it as a separate assignment rather than as part of his job as commanding general of the Army Air Forces. He will use it as a strategic air force directed from Washington. The chief of staff of the 20th Air Force is Brig. Gen. H. S. Hansell, Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army Air Forces.

Vast Production Program
The plane and its employment are complemented by the most gigantic production program ever conceived for any weapon of war. Virtually every industrial center in America is contributing directly to the output of the huge bomber, which already is rolling down multiple assembly lines in five of the nation's greatest airplane factories. In addition, one sub-assembly plant is so large it has the status of a prime contractor. The program is counted in billions of dollars.

The War department and the Boeing Airplane company showed the B-29 and its supporting program to the some 60 newspaper, magazine and radio writers at Wichita, Kas., heart of the production scheme, early in May. The information was held in confidence until today's disclosure that it had bombed Japan. The writers were flown in the plane and permitted to inspect it thoroughly, aloft and aground.

Long familiar in only the most general terms, these details of the superfortress now may be published: Its wing span is 141.2 feet, its length 98 feet, its height 27 feet. It has a cylindrical fuselage, a midwing, a high dorsal fin, tricycle landing gear and is all metal.

Armament includes .50 calibre machine guns in power turrets and a 20 mm cannon. There is much protective armor. The power consists of four 18-cylinder, radial Wright cyclone engines rated at 2,200 horsepower for takeoff. Each engine is served by two turbo-superchargers to provide the high altitude operation desired. Each engine drives a 16½-foot four-bladed Hamilton-Standard propeller, largest ever installed on an airplane. The propellers are connected by reduction gears so that they turn slower (one-third as fast as the engines) than any other aircraft propellers.

Crew comforts, surpassing anything in any previous warplane. The cabin has been soundproofed, seats are of the latest design, four cots and many minor conveniences are available. The purpose is increased crew efficiency in combat despite the long time spent in the air.

Except for a hydraulic booster on the brakes, the B-29 is entirely electric. It has 150 electric motors of 40 types, using power supplied by auxiliary engines.

So complex is the plane's operation that a flight engineer controls most of the power plant, the pilot using only the throttle and his usual flight instruments. The rudder and ailerons are so balanced that despite their size they are operated without the aid of boosters, thus giving the pilot the "feel" experienced in smaller aircraft.

Faster, Farther, Higher
Performance data must remain on the restricted list, but Boeing officials were permitted to say that it "carries the greatest load factor, farther and higher than any other airplane in existence," and its speed "compares favorably with the latest and fastest of the world's pursuit and fighter planes."

Takeoff and landing speeds of the B-29 approximate that of its baby brother, the Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress which weighs only half as much but is two-thirds as large. This is due to an entirely new wing, the Boeing 11 airfoil, which Boeing officials assert is the "most efficient wing ever devised." It carries a greater load per square foot than any other.

In connection with it are used flaps amounting to one-fifth the total wing area. These are lowered to 25 degrees for takeoff and 45 degrees for landing. The wing has an aspect ratio (length divided by chord or average width) of 11.5, a high figure indicating a very slender wing.

The double wheels on the main landing gear, at 4½ feet in diameter, those on the nose wheel (the only double nose wheel in use) are three feet. The air pressure in the tires is less than in a bicycle tire, indicating the plane can land on relatively light runways.

Most Tested Plane in World
The big plane is easily the most streamlined heavy bomber in the world, its contour exceeding in smoothness that of most commercial planes. It is so aerodynamically "clean" that the "drag" or wind resistance is doubled when the landing gear is lowered.

In appearance, the B-29 has the round-nose features of the Boeing Stratoliner and the swept back wing, slender body and high tail of the Flying Fortress. The Superfortress is described as the "most tested airplane in the world," with 3,000 hours of wind tunnel work. It was conceived in March, 1940, in the Boeing plant at Seattle and made its first flight there Sept. 21, 1942.

House Republicans Plan Public Hearings On Tax

WASHINGTON, June 16—Chairman Reed (R-NY) of the house Republican postwar tax study committee announced today his group would open public hearings soon after the summer congressional recess on a proposed postwar tax program designed to cut present levies by one-half.

Leaders of business, agriculture, labor and other groups will be invited to testify, he said.

"We are unanimously agreed that no time should be lost in formulating a postwar tax program," Reed asserted in a prepared statement. "Apparently the treasury has no postwar tax plan or suggestions. The administration apparently either is unwilling to face the problem or is putting it off to some last-minute date. The time to develop such a plan is now."

The planned hearings would open here, with follow-up sessions at other cities later.

The Reed group is composed of 25 Republican representatives, 10 of them members of the tax-writing ways and means committee.

When the GOP committee announced its goal of a 50 per cent cut in postwar taxes recently, Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the ways and means committee termed the move "purely politics."

Can't Find Underwear For 260 Pound Wisconsin Man

WASHINGTON, June 16 — The house was asked today to provide a suit of underwear for a Wisconsin man six feet six inches tall and weighing 260 pounds.

"This constituent of mine really faces a crisis," Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.) told the members. "Due to mistakes in OPA handling of allocation and production he can't find a pair of underwear big enough to fit him anywhere in the nation. Can any man in this house help him? Why don't you give him —" of yours?" asked Rep. Mason (R-Ill.) as Keefe (well over six feet and weighing more than 200 pounds) sat down amid laughter. The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics—in area the largest country in the world—occupies 8,095,000 square miles.

and Title "Joker" Has Cost Purchasers $75,000 In 60 Years

(By United Press)
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — When F. Menage, a fabulous character in the early growing days of Minneapolis, was carrying on grand real estate promotion, he thoughtfully inserted a clause in his deeds which still is bringing ready income to an heir.

The land involved in the development embraced, roughly, 12 square miles in the southwest section of the city, and into thousands of deeds went the provision that the property should revert to his heirs or assigns forever should the property ever be used for storage, sale or manufacture of vinous, malt or brewed liquors.

Even though the great majority of the original and subsequent purchasers had no mind to enter the liquor business, they found the innocent appearing paragraph, now known as the "Menage clause," clouded their title.

The owners began to beat a path to the door of Menage, seeking to claim deeds, upon which he had set the modest price of $5. As demand increased, so did Menage's fee—to $25.

Such deeds once became unobtainable at any price. Menage, whose promotional career was climaxed with the construction of the Guaranty Life building here, the world's tallest skyscraper at the time, twice was indicted for conspiracy in 1893. One of the indictments involved $723,289.70; the other, $270,289.70.

Menage reportedly spent some time in South America at this time, actually returning to Minneapolis where the court charges against him were dismissed in 1899. He lived his few remaining years in New York, kept in life's necessities with the $25 fee. The suit claim right then passed to his wife, Amanda; then to her daughter, Bessie, who died in 1938, bequeathing it to a friend, Sarah Benson Koehler, who still collects $30 to 60 deeds yearly.

Officials here estimate that 3,000 deeds have been cleared in this manner over a period of 60 to 70 years, at a total cost of approximately $75,000.

Yankee Sense Of Humor Will Win War, According To Nurse

(By International News Service)
PITTSBURGH — Army Nurse Lieut. Virginia LaBelle Watts learned on the Anzio beachhead that Yankee sense of humor makes American victory inevitable.

In a letter to her father, Fred A. LaBelle, Lieut. Watts wrote: "Some happy tomorrow, if anyone at a Parent-Teacher meeting asks me why we won the war, I can easily say that it was the indestructible Yankee sense of humor that bounced us to Berlin."

Not Much to Giggle Over
"In the worst situations, someone always murmurs some wonderful, wacky thing which melts all tension to marshmallows and everyone goes on, quite calm and a little giggly."

But there was not much to giggle at on the beachhead. "Africa, Sicily and landing at Salerno all seemed like basic training compared to our experiences at Anzio," her letter continued. "We never worked harder or longer or loved our work more."

"It's funny how the dive bombers seem so definitely aimed at exactly one's own insignificant spot on earth—and that awful wait before the earth rocks from the explosion. The scarlet ack ack troops across the sky, the area bright from the pink and amber light of flares, the bonfire glow of effective hits, are a colorful and awful sight."

Longs For Peace
"Every morning, out of the heap of cotton and roses in the wakening east, roar scores of our fighter planes to begin patrols or meet proud formations of bomber squadrons as an escort."

"No football game ever evoked more cheering than we give these lads and if a plane is hit, our hearts open with every 'chute and prayers drift gently down along the dog fights are exhausting to watch, cuz' we all fight so hard just standing still."

"None of us would exchange combat life in spite of all our day dreaming of wearing a white uniform in a quiet sane place somewhere because, since we are so close to the front, we feel that much closer to our kingdom of tomorrow, the tomorrow all full of soft lights and music, blue polka dot dresses, crisp celery, hotel dining rooms, Sunday drives—and oh, just the whole vibrant loveliness of America to fill our pockets with for a rich and peaceful always."

A carefully mended run is almost invisible in rayon hosiery if you will use thread raveled from a discarded silk stocking.

The new colorful nets for the hair can be used in duo. Try using a lavender one over your chignon and a grey one to veil your forehead.

Why not can oven baked beans, so they will always be on hand when you get a longing for them? Get together with a neighbor for a baked bean canning day.

Lingerie can be laundered by gently squeezing out of warm, sudsy water. The shoulder straps will usually need a little extra rubbing with a soft brush.

Put two or three tablespoons of kerosene in a boilerful of white clothes to help lighten them. Be sure to rinse thoroughly to remove any odor.

WPB says the world normally consumes six times more cotton than wool or rayon, 25 times more cotton than silk.

PILOTLESS

"They really are midget planes. At night they show a distinct mellow glow at the rear and in the light of searchlights streams of thick smoke can be seen being ejected from them."

"Many of them have been observed in daylight on several occasions RAF fighters, with total disregard of danger, have dived into the ack ack fire around them in attempts to make a kill."

As the day wore on alerts and all clear alternated over southern England and guns cracked intermittently, but the nation's business went on without interruption.

Home Secretary Herbert S. Morrison told commons today that these radio-controlled planes were used first Tuesday night, and came over again last night and today.

While he was speaking, southern England shook to light and heavy anti-aircraft guns and rockets barking out at these raiders coming over sporadically.

British Wear Tin Hats Again
More enemy raiders were seen crossing the southern English coast at intervals this morning, with anti-aircraft guns opening up on them and RAF fighters going up to meet them.

Reports did not indicate whether these were more of the pilotless planes but presumably they were. The Nazis thus were striking against the flow of Allied strength into the successful bridgehead in France, hoping to divert it.

Morrison referred to the pilotless planes as "missiles," indicating they were designed to crash against their objectives rather than to drop bombs as orthodox planes do.

He indicated these planes were not expected to return home. He said he had "not had full reports on the number of pilotless aircraft destroyed before they could explode" last night.

Today blitzhardened British took their tin hats to work for the first time since 1941 as Hitler's move placed them once more in the front line with troops fighting across the channel.

Thunderous barrages echoed on both sides of the channel as the battle of the bridgehead merged into one with the new battle of Britain.

Morrison explained to parliament that to refrain from giving the Germans an accurate check on the effectiveness of this new weapon, in the future no information would be released on raids against southern England—an area south of a line from the wash to the Bristol channel—except for the bare facts of attacks made in this general region.

GIRL'S ATTACKER IS CHASED AWAY

Police are investigating an attempted attack on a 13-year-old Salem girl, which occurred at about 6 p. m. yesterday in the Sunset View allotment north of the city on Route 62.

The attempt was thwarted when a resident of the allotment saw a man forcing the girl away from the street and towards a field. He immediately followed the pair and said the man ran when he got close to them. The girl was unharmed.

Although police searched the neighborhood and the north end of town for several hours last night, no trace of the assailant was found. He was described to be a man of average height and around 25 years old.

victory which the Allies are carving out of this terrific struggle isn't being won without sacrifice. The Germans are insisting that further Allied invasions are imminent—and who are we to dispute with them? They say that new landings at Calais and Ostende, in the narrow part of the English channel, are expected momentarily.

The violent bombing and shelling of the great port of Le Havre, close to the present battle of the Cherbourg peninsula, leads the Hitlerites to fear an attempt to capture that city. Then Berlin alleges that there's an important Allied fleet in the Bay of Biscay off southwestern France, near Spain. And, of course, the Nazis are looking for an invasion of the Rhone valley in southern France by the French.

Well, any or all of these things look like possibilities. Time will tell.

stroke at the maximum power of the long-secret 20th Bomber command.

Two B-29s failed to return. (The War department in Washington announced that these two were lost because of accidents and not because of enemy action, and that the crew of one was known to be safe.)

The raid came on the heels of Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo's declaration that the Japanese themselves were preparing a surprise. Japanese radio stations were broadcasting English versions of the premier's declaration and playing pirated American swing music when Wolfe's raider pack came in on their silvery 141-foot wings.

The first target attacked in Japan by the new weapon was one of the most strongly defended in the Japanese home islands.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
The doorbell rang. He jumped to answer it. Ellen was standing there, a man's light overcoat draped over her bathing suit. Her teeth were chattering, her hair was mussed and there were scratches on her face.

"Ellen!" Argus cried with relief, drawing her inside. "Ellen, darling!" He took her in his arms. She clung to him sobbing. "You poor kid! You're freezing! I'll get Butch to draw you a hot bath. Then you can tell me what happened."

Butch looked at relieved and happy as Argus when he saw Ellen. He hurried off to attend to a warm drink and the bath.

Argus had forgotten about Mabel lying on the couch. Ellen started when she spied her.

"How you must've missed me!" she said, pointing to the recumbent figure. "An old friend of the family, I presume."

"I'll explain everything," Argus said. "That's Mabel. I used her as a decoy."

"She looks like a live ducky to me."

"You don't understand. I called one of Dancer's men and told him that if Dancer didn't get you back to me, I'd—well, liquidate Mabel." Argus pushed Mabel into a chair near the fireplace and lit a match under the logs.

"So that's Mabel!" snapped Ellen. "Yes, Martinelli's Mabel."

"You must've had a dull evening with your decoy. You've got lipstick 'way under your chin." Argus gulped, wiped his chin with his hand and stared at the red smear on his fingers as though he were utterly astounded.

Butch brought in the hot drink. "Your bat will be ready in a minute," he said. "Gee! I'm sure glad to see ya back, Miss Ellen." He glared at Mabel on the couch. Argus grinned at his expression.

"Mabel got an idea I was her dream prince," explained Argus, wiping off the rest of the lipstick with his handkerchief. "She's just a child of nature at heart. But it worked, didn't it? I've got you back, Darling. I was so scared!" He tilted her head back and kissed her gently.

"I escaped," said Ellen. "You what?" Argus exclaimed. "You mean Martinelli didn't turn you loose?"

"Nope. I crowned my kidnaper with a skillet."

"Don't tell me my noble sacrifice was all in vain!" He indicated Mabel.

"Look, mister, first I'd like to take that bath you mentioned and then I'll tell all. I've had a busy night."

"Oh sure—sure," said Argus, getting up. Half an hour later Ellen emerged from Argus' bedroom, draped in a pair of silk pajamas.

"Now I'll talk," she announced, curling up in one of the big, red leather chairs before the fireplace. Argus then sat on the floor beside her chair, highball in hand.

"Out with it, I'm all ears!" "All right, Clark—if I may call you that—lend ears! It was like this," she took a deep breath. "I was posing at the wilton pool for an ad. I'd noticed that sallow-complexioned Lucky Gambirini following me from my apartment to the visitors' gallery watching us take pictures and I began to get scared. I remembered Inspector Grange had said that Cynthia Lane had been shot with a gun that once belonged to Lucky. Well, anyway, I decided to phone you. I threw a coat over my shoulders and went upstairs to the phones. I was talking to Butch when I heard someone behind me. I turned. It was Lucky. He said for me to come with him quietly, that Dancer already had you in the car and if I behaved, everything would be all right."

"The skunk!" "I was pretty scared, but I didn't know what to do. So I hung up and followed him out around the corner on 50th Street. Of course, you weren't in the car. They bandaged my eyes and made me sit on the floor of the car, and we drove and drove. Finally we stopped and they led me up some steps and inside a house. They tied me to a chair and then took the bandage off my eyes. Remember I had on nothing but a coat and a bathing suit. The rope cut into my arms and legs. Look!" Ellen showed Argus the chafed marks.

"Poor baby!" He bent over and kissed her arm tenderly. "The place they took me looked no different from any average house in the country. The room I was in was the kitchen. "How many men were there?" "There must've been three. The one who drove the car, Lucky, and the one who tied me up."

"Was Dancer there?" "Yes, Martinelli was out at the house when we got there. He told Lucky to leave and left the other one in charge. He was apologetic about the whole thing and said if it hadn't been for your snooping around in business that didn't concern you, he wouldn't have had to do it."

"How'd you get away?" "Dancer left the other man in the kitchen. And this is where the funny part comes in," Ellen laughed at the recollection. "If I hadn't been so scared I might have been more amused at the time. The man who was left to guard me got hungry. So he took down some cans from the shelf and tried to open them. He cut himself with the can opener and that apparently led him to try another and more unique method. He tried to shoot the tops off with his gun. Mind you! Firing bullets into an innocent little can of pork and beans!" Ellen took a deep breath.

"I started laughing," she went on, "and he asked me what was so funny. I told him he was about as effective as most of the men I knew around a kitchen, and that he'd probably die of lead poisoning by the time he was ready to eat the beans. If he'd untie my hands, I said I'd cook dinner for him."

"Did he fall for it?" Argus held her hand as she talked. "Not at first. But I pointed out that he was making a lot of noise and wasting good bullets for nothing. Then I got his appetite up by telling him about how I could cook and describing Butch's fried chicken and cheese souffle. 'Til he was just drooling. I told him that he was a great big armed man, and I was just a poor little defenseless girl, so why couldn't he untie me and just keep an eye on me?"

"That doesn't require much effort," grinned Argus. "Besides you looked like Miss Atlantic City."

He finally was convinced and let me loose. I started to get supper. As you know, I'm not very good but I had seen pictures, so I put on an act. I began sifting flour like mad, breaking eggs into bowls and everything I thought looked like the real McCoy. There was a big frying pan on the stove—an iron one—so I dropped another pan on the floor. He came over and picked it up." Ellen grinned.

"When he stooped, I socked him right over the head as hard as I could. He went out—presto! I hope I didn't hurt him too badly. Then I got his gun, my overcoat, and made a dash for it."

Argus was laughing. "But then came the surprise," said Ellen. "When I slipped outside, I discovered there wasn't another house around—only woods. So, I started walking. It was bitter cold out there and a bathing suit and light overcoat aren't exactly my idea of what the well dressed model will wear in the winter. I had gooseflesh all over me. I followed a dirt road for what seemed miles, until I came to a highway and flagged a passing truck. The driver's eyes almost popped out of his head when he got a good look at me. But here I am."

"You have all the fun, really!" Argus kissed her up-turned palm. "What did you tell the truck driver?"

"I told him I was a model who had been kidnapped and that I was looking for my kidnaper. He said he'd take me to the police station."

"That's all?" "That's all," said Ellen. "I was pretty scared, but I didn't know what to do. So I hung up and followed him out around the corner on 50th Street. Of course, you weren't in the car. "The truth," said Ellen. "He didn't believe me at first, but then who would. He must've thought I was a fugitive from Billy Rose's Aquacade. Later, after I'd convinced him, he was all for going back and taking on the kidnapers single handed. So you see! The age of chivalry isn't dead!"

"Well, it's good our Little Nell is safely back! That's the main thing."

"Now tell me what's happened on the home front," urged Ellen. "Any new developments, aside from your dizzy decoy over there?"

"Are there!" Argus exclaimed. "Practically none of your friends are still alive." The detective quickly told her of finding Pierre Sturgis' body in Redbeard's hideout after his (Steele's) visit with Roger Flagg at the hospital.

"They really are midget planes. At night they show a distinct glow at the rear and in the light of searchlights streams of thick smoke can be seen being ejected from them."

"Many of them have been observed in daylight and on several occasions RAF fighters, with total disregard of danger, have dived into the ack ack fire around them in attempts to make a kill."

As the day wore on alerts and all clear alternated over southern England and guns cracked intermittently, but the nation's interest went on without interruption.

Home Secretary Herbert S. Morrison told commons today that these radio-controlled planes were used first Tuesday night, and came over again last night and today.

While he was speaking, southern England shook to light and heavy anti-aircraft guns and rockets barking out at these raiders coming over sporadically.

British Wear Tin Hats Again

More enemy raiders were seen crossing the southern English coast at intervals this morning, with anti-aircraft guns opening up on them and RAF fighters going up to meet them.

Reports did not indicate whether these were more of the pilotless planes but presumably they were.

The Nazis thus were striking against the flow of Allied strength into the successful bridgehead in France, hoping to divert it.

Morrison referred to the pilotless planes as "missiles," indicating they were designed to crash against their objectives rather than to drop bombs as orthodox planes do.

He indicated these planes were not expected to return home. He said he had "not had full reports on the number of pilotless aircraft destroyed before they could explode" last night.

Today blitzhardened British took their tin hats to work for the first time since 1941 as Hitler's move placed them once more in the front line with troops fighting across the channel.

Thunderous barrages echoed on both sides of the channel as the battle of the bridgehead merged into one with the new battle of Britain.

Morrison explained to parliament that to refrain from giving the Germans an accurate check on the effectiveness of this new weapon, in the future no information would be released on raids against southern England or areas south of a line from the wash to the Bristol channel—except for the bare facts of attacks made in this general region.

GIRL'S ATTACKER IS CHASED AWAY

Police are investigating an attempted attack on a 13-year-old Salem girl, which occurred at about 6 p. m. yesterday in the Sunset View allotment north of the city on Route 62.

The attempt was thwarted when a resident of the allotment saw a man forcing the girl away from the street and towards a field. He immediately followed the pair and said the man ran when he got close to them. The girl was unharmed.

Although police searched the neighborhood and the north end of town for several hours last night, no trace of the assailant was found. He was described to be a man of average height and around 25 years old.

READ THE WANT COLUMNS

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

Victory which the Allies are carving out of this terrific struggle isn't being won without sacrifice.

The Germans are insisting that further Allied invasions are imminent—and who are we to dispute with them? They say that new landings at Calais and Ostende, in the narrow part of the English channel, are expected momentarily.

The violent bombing and shelling of the great port of Le Havre, close to the present battle of the Cherbourg peninsula, leads the Hitlerites to fear an attempt to capture that city. Then Berlin alleges that there's an important Allied fleet in the Bay of Biscay off southwestern France, near Spain. And, of course, the Nazis are looking for an invasion of the Rhone valley in southern France by the French.

Well, any or all of these things look like possibilities. Time will tell.

The girl died at noon yesterday in the Central Clinic of an abdominal wound inflicted by William Hough, Jr., of Lisbon, who shot her with a .30-caliber revolver while the two were at the home of Police Officer Edward T. Baker.

Coroner Arnold Devon has not returned a verdict in the girl's death, but his ruling will be based on the findings of an autopsy held last night on the body. Sheriff George Hayes said no charges have been filed.

stroke at the maximum power of the long-secret 20th Bomber command.

Two B-29s failed to return. (The War department in Washington announced that these two were lost because of accidents and not because of enemy action, and that the crew of one was known to be safe.)

The raid came on the heels of Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo's declaration that the Japanese themselves were preparing a surprise. Japanese radio stations were broadcasting English versions of the premier's declaration and playing pirated American swing music when Wolfe's raider pack came in on their silvery 141-foot wings.

The first target attacked in Japan by the new weapon was one of the most strongly defended in the Japanese home islands.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

The doorbell rang. He jumped to answer it. Ellen was standing there, a man's light overcoat draped over her bathing suit. Her teeth were chattering, her hair was mussed and there were scratches on her face.

"Ellen!" Argus cried with relief, drawing her inside. "Ellen, darling! He took her in his arms. She clung to him sobbing. "You poor kid! You're freezing! I'll get Butch to draw you a hot bath. Then you can tell me what happened."

Butch looked as relieved and happy as Argus when he saw Ellen. He hurried off to attend to a warm drink and the bath.

Argus had forgotten about Mabel lying on the couch. Ellen started when she spied her.

"How you must've missed me!" she said, pointing to the recumbent figure. "An old friend of the family, I presume."

"I'll explain everything," Argus said. "That's Mabel. I used her as a decoy."

"She looks like a live ducky to me."

"You don't understand. I called one of Dancer's men and told him that if Dancer didn't get you back to me, I'd—well, liquidate Mabel." Argus pushed Mabel into a chair near the fireplace and lit a match under the logs.

"So that's Mabel!" snapped Ellen. "Yes, Martinelli's Mabel."

"You must've had a dull evening with your decoy. You've got lipstick under your chin." Argus gulped, wiped his chin with his hand and stared at the red smear on his fingers as though he were utterly astounded.

Butch brought in the hot drink. "Your bat'll be ready in a minute," he said. "Gee! I'm sure glad to see ya back, Miss Ellen." He glared at Mabel on the couch. Argus grinned at his expression.

"Mabel got an idea I was her dream prince," explained Argus, wiping off the rest of the lipstick with his handkerchief. "She's just a child of nature at heart. But it worked, didn't it? I've got you back, darling. I was so scared!" He tilted her head back and kissed her gently.

"I escaped," said Ellen.

"You what?" Argus exclaimed. "You mean Martinelli didn't turn you loose?"

"Nope. I crowned my kidnaper with a skillet."

"Don't tell me my noble sacrifice was all in vain!" He indicated Mabel.

"Look, mister, first I'd like to take that bath you mentioned and then I'll tell all. I've had a busy night."

"Oh sure—sure," said Argus, getting up.

Half an hour later Ellen emerged from Argus' bedroom, draped in a pair of silk pajamas.

"Now I'll talk," she announced, curling up in one of the big, red leather chairs before the fireplace. Argus then sat on the floor beside her chair, highball in hand.

"Out with it. I'm all ears!"

"All right, Clark—if I may call you that—lend ears! It was like this. She took a deep breath. "I was posing at the wilton pool for an ad. I'd noticed that tall, complexioned Lucky Gambirini following me from my apartment to the visitors' gallery watching us take pictures and I began to get scared. I remembered Inspector Grange had said that Cynthia Lane had been shot with a gun that once belonged to Lucky. Well, anyway, I decided to phone you. I threw a coat over my shoulders and went upstairs to the phones. I was talking to Butch when I heard someone behind me. I turned. It was Lucky. He said for me to come with him quietly, that Dancer already had you in the car and if I behaved, everything would be all right."

"The skunk!"

"I was pretty scared, but I didn't know what to do. So I hung up and followed him out around the corner to the South Street. Of course, you weren't in the car. They bandaged my eyes and made me sit on the floor of the car, and we drove and drove. Finally we stopped and they led me up some steps and inside a house. They tied me to a chair and then took the bandage off my eyes. Remember I had on nothing but a coat and a bathing suit. The rope cut into my arms and legs. Look!" Ellen showed Argus the "chafed" marks.

"Poor baby!" He bent over and kissed her arm tenderly.

"The place they took me looked no different from any average house in the country. The room I was in was the kitchen."

"How many men were there?"

"There must've been three. The one who drove the car, Lucky, and the one who tied me up."

"Was Dancer there?"

"Yes, Martinelli was out at the house when we got there. He told Lucky to leave and left the other one in charge. He was apologetic about the whole thing and said if it hadn't been for your snooping around in business that didn't concern you, he wouldn't have had to do it."

"How'd you get away?"

"Dancer left the other man in the kitchen. And this is where the funny part comes in." Ellen laughed at the recollection. "If I hadn't been so scared I might have been more amused at the time. The man who was left to guard me got hungry. So he took down some cans from the shelf and tried to open them. He cut himself with the can opener and then apparently led him to try another and more unique method. He tried to shoot the tops off with his gun. Mind you! Firing bullets into an innocent little can of pork and beans!" Ellen took a deep breath.

"I started laughing," she went on, "and he asked me what was so funny. I told him he was about as effective as most of the men I knew around a kitchen, and that he'd probably die of lead poisoning by the time he was ready to eat the beans. If he'd untie my hands, I said I'd cook dinner for him."

"Did he fall for it?" Argus held her hand as she talked.

"Not at first. But I pointed out that he was making a lot of noise and wasting good bullets for nothing. Then I got his appetite up by telling him about how I could cook and describing Butch's fried chicken and cheese souffle, 'til he was just drooling. I told him that he was a great big armed man, and I was just a poor little defenseless girl, so why couldn't he untie me and just keep an eye on me?"

"That doesn't require much effort," grinned Argus. "Besides you looked like Miss Atlantic City."

He finally was convinced and let me loose. I started to get supper. As you know, I'm not very good but I had seen pictures, so I put on an act. I began sifting flour like mad, breaking eggs into bowls and everything I thought looked like the real McCoy. There was a big frying pan on the stove—an iron one—so I dropped another pan on the floor. He came over and picked it up." Ellen grinned.

"When he stooped, I socked him right over the head as hard as I could. He went out—presumably I didn't hurt him too badly. Then I got his gun, my overcoat, and made a dash for it."

Argus was laughing.

"But then came the surprise," said Ellen. "When I stepped outside, I discovered there wasn't another house around—only woods. So, I started walking. It was bitter cold out there and a bathing suit and light overcoat aren't exactly my idea of what the well dressed model will wear in the winter. I had gooseflesh all over me. I followed a dirt road for what seemed miles, until I came to a highway and flagged a passing truck. The driver's eyes almost popped out of his head when he got a good look at me. But here I am."

"You have all the fun, really!" Argus kissed her up-turned palm.

"What did you tell the truck driver?"

"The truth," said Ellen. "He didn't believe me at first, but then who would. He must've thought I was a fugitive from Billy Rose's Aquacade. Later, after I'd convinced him, he was all for going back and taking on the kidnapers single handed. So you see! The age of chivalry isn't dead!"

"Well, it's good our Little Nell is safely back! That's the main thing."

"Now tell me what's happened on the home front," urged Ellen. "Any new developments, aside from your dizzy decoy over there?"

"Are there!" Argus exclaimed. "Practically none of your friends are still alive." The detective quickly told her of finding Pierre Sturgis' body in Redbeard's hideout after his (Steele's) visit with Roger Flagg at the hospital.

PIN-WORMS At Last—A Real Treatment!

You may not realize how many of your neighbors—grown-ups as well as children—have Pin-Worms at this very moment. People don't talk about this nasty infection. Sometimes they are too embarrassed to mention the tormenting rectal itching; and up to now they have usually suffered in silence because they have not known of any effective way to deal with this dreadful pest that lives inside the human body.

Important Medical Discovery

Today, thanks to a valuable scientific discovery, a remarkable new treatment has been made possible. It is based on a special drug, known as gentian violet. This drug is the vital element in P-W, the new Pin-Worm tablets developed by Dr. D. Jayne & Son, America's leading specialists in worm medicines. P-W tablets are small and easy to take, and they get in a special, gentle way to destroy Pin-Worms.

It is very easy to "catch" this nasty infection, and the way creatures can cause real distress. So watch for the signs that may mean Pin-Worms: itching seat, uneasy stomach, bed-wetting, nervous fidgeting. If you suspect Pin-Worms, get a box of P-W right away and follow the simple directions carefully. P-W means Pin-Worm relief!

PARKS WIN AGAIN IN CLASS B FRAY

The Park A. C. softball team chalked up another decisive win in Class B league play yesterday by downing the Rams, 12-3, after trailing 3-0 the first three innings.

The Rams started the scoring in the first with two runs and followed with another in the third before Parks broke the shut out. In the fourth the Parks got two, collected six in the fifth and four more in the seventh.

Dick Hahn, star roving shortstop for Parks, batted out three hits and scored two runs in three times at bat.

CHINA WINS NINTH TO STAY UNBEATEN AS SHEENS WIN 3-1

Ritchie Keeps Potters On Top; Lanney Holds Jim Team to One Hit

Winning their ninth straight of the season and their third in a row this round, the Salem Chinas defeated Mullins 2-0 behind Dale Ritchie's three-hit pitching while Sheens' Francis Lanney turned in another one-hit game to down Jim's 3-1 at Centennial park yesterday.

Ritchie not only pitched his team to victory, but drove a hard double to right field in the fifth inning to push the two China runs across the plate. They threatened again in the final inning but fell short of an additional score.

The loss dropped Mullins into third place and leaves just two teams, the China and The Salem News, unbeaten this round.

"Hammering" Harry Ehrhart, the Chinas' third sacker, boosted his already high batting average to .500 yesterday as he batted out four safeties in as many trips to the plate. The diminutive hot corner man also is leading the league in runs scored, having crossed the plate nine times this season.

Lanney's Third One-Hitter

In the second game of the day, a fray between Sheens and Jim's, the league's junior squad dropped a close one-3-1, although they managed only one hit from the Sheen pitcher. The one-hitter was the third of the year for Francis Lanney, who also is credited with the season's first no-hit game.

Sheens picked up a score in the first, third and sixth innings, while Jim's collected their lone tally in the first half of the initial frame.

Kozar, hurling for Jim's, allowed only seven safeties during the game and his teammates committed five errors.

Tonight's games pit the Recreationists against Paxsons at 6 o'clock and The News against a rejuvenated Demings squad at 7. By downing The News, Demings can place in a three-way tie for second place.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The National museum of baseball at Cooperstown, N. Y., recently has acquired a ball presented to Capt. Roy Smith, former governor of Guam, by the Navy champion team for 1917-18, and an artificial hand which E. L. Blystone once used to play baseball. We hope the person who buys that Japanese "Paul Waner" bat when it is auctioned on a War Bond radio program tomorrow will donate it to the museum.

The bat, you remember, was found by Marine Corp. Charlie Truitt of Wilmington, Del., in a shell crater on Namur island, surrounded by seven dead nips. Truitt sent it to Waner, who contributed it to the War Bond drive.

JUST A T'SER

Did De Grot, the Washington Redskins' new coach, think he can talk Mrs. Andy Farkas into letting her fullback husband play football again next fall. "The clincher, I think," says Dur, "Will be the fact that we are using the T formation. She's alarmed about the battering Andy takes trying to run against major league lines from the single wing formation."

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Hanover's Bertha (1-58%), the only mare to win the Hambleton and produce a winner of that trotting classic, died last Sunday at the Hanover (Pa.) shoe farms. Hanover's Bertha won in 1930 and her daughter, Shirley Hanover, in 1937.

Billy Petrolle appeared at the Armstrong-Davis slugfest last night and the Garden crowd really expressed approval of the Old Fargo Express—both loud. Vinsfurlough, who may be running for your dough in the 1947 Kentucky derby, was named that because he as foaled while his part-owner's son, Pile, Vinnie Byrnes, intercollegiate 127-pound boxing champ at Syracuse, was home on furlough.

Head shaving, long a tradition for freshman footballers at Georgia, has been ruled out this year. Coach Wally Butts says ball players are too valuable to risk having any skinned heads in scrimmage.

RED SOX WIN 9TH STRAIGHT TO MOVE NEARER TOP PLACE

Boston Now Tied With St. Louis For Best Winning Streak of Year

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Boston Red Sox joined the St. Louis Browns in running the longest winning streak of the season when they defeated the Philadelphia Athletics 5-1 yesterday for their ninth straight victory.

Tex Hughson, Red Sox ace right-hander, gained his ninth victory to bring his team to within a half game of the league leading Browns. Hughson thus ties Hal Newhouser of the Tigers for the most victories in the American league.

He allowed the Athletics six hits to give the Sox a clean sweep of the four game series. Bob Johnson hit his fourth homer for the Red Sox.

The New York Giants defeated Brooklyn 9-2 at night to move into a tie with the Cincinnati Reds for third place in the National loop, and Mel Ott smashed his 17th homer in the first inning with two on.

Washington made it three out of four over the New York Yankees, with Mickey Haefer outpitching Joe Page 3-2.

Rookie Paul O'Dea's single in the 11th inning scored Oris Hockett to give Cleveland a 3-2 win over Detroit. The victories advanced the Senators and Indians a couple of notches into a fourth-place tie.

Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati 1-0, scoring the lone run in the ninth on Bob Elliott's single scoring Jeep Hanley.

The Philadelphia Phillies came from behind twice to win from the Boston Braves, 5-4. Ford Mullen's single with two out scored Jimmy Wasdell, who had doubled to start the eighth. Jim Tobin, in relief, was charged with the loss and Ken Ralfeberger received the win.

The St. Louis and Chicago Clubs in both leagues were not scheduled.
